

Program Guide for Librarians

What the podcast is:

Company D is a narrative history podcast uncovering the real lives of soldiers from Maine's Third Maine Infantry Regiment during the Civil War. Each episode tells a gripping true story drawn from diaries, letters, pension files, and forgotten records—raw, riveting, and real. Company D preserves and shares Maine's Civil War history one soldier at a time.

Who it's for:

History buffs and listeners who enjoy gripping true-life stories. Ideal for students, researchers, local historians, genealogy groups, Civil War classes, and local history programs.

Time commitment / Episode length:

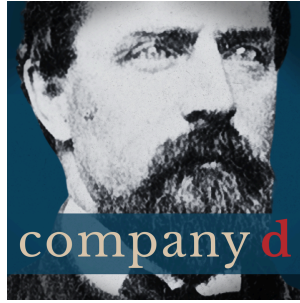

Each episode runs 30-45 minutes.

How often are episodes released:

"Season One" launched September 17 with 10 episodes. Season Two launched on June 10, 2026, with 10 new episodes running through October. Season Three is in the works for the winter of 2027.

Content Type:

Free audio podcasts available on all major podcast apps, including Spotify, Apple Podcasts, Amazon Music, and YouTube. Video content is available on TikTok and YouTube. Full transcripts and show notes—with references and footnotes—are available on the website.

Program Guide for Librarians

Contact:

Host & Executive Producer George F. Snell III:
companydpodcast@gmail.com

Links:

- Website: <https://companydpodcast.com>
- Podcast apps: <https://companydpodcast.com/links>
- Library & historical society resources: <https://companydpodcast/resources>
- Company D is also on Instagram, Facebook, LinkedIn, Threads, and Bluesky